Non-Price Evaluation Factors:

Factor (A) Microplastic Experience: Respondents shall submit resumes of scientists that will be analyzing the microplastic samples including education and experience in analysis of microplastic samples using current references, keys, and publications.

Factor (B) Technical Performance: Respondents must be established in the required services business. Respondents must provide a narrative, not to exceed two pages, describing their capabilities to perform the services described in the Statement of Work.

Factor (C) Past Performance: Respondents shall submit not less than two references for services performed during the past three years. Each reference shall include: the company or agency name, address, point(s) of contract phone number or email address(es). References provided may be contacted by the Government. In addition, any information obtained by the Government from references outside of the offeror's quotation may also be used, in a similar manner, in the technical evaluation of the offeror's quotation to the extent appropriate. Past performance information provided by references, from Government records, or from other than the sources identified by the offeror may be used in the evaluation under any or all applicable evaluation factors. The degree of importance of price or cost as an evaluation factor will increase with the degree of equality in the non-price merits of the response packages. Between acceptable response packages with a significant difference in non-price merit, a determination will be made as to whether the additional non-price merit or benefits reflected by a higher priced response package warrants payment of the additional price or cost.

Response Package Preparation

Respondents are cautioned to study the Non-price Evaluation Factors stated above along with their relative importance. Your response package shall address each of these factors since these are the standards against which your response package will be evaluated. It is the respondent's responsibility to include the appropriate documentation in its response package to allow a complete non-price and price evaluation.
