BACKGROUND

Shell and tube heat exchangers are very common type of heat exchangers used in commercial and industrial settings. Buildings 1, 2, 24, and 29 rely on steam to water heat exchangers for domestic and heating hot water, and often require renovation or troubleshooting, due to maintenance and reliability issues. Buildings 1, 2, 24, and 29 heat exchangers need to be replaced since the current ones are past their useful life, rapidly failing, and requiring more frequent, recurring repairs.
